Re: CC Docket No. 96-115 / & WT Docket 96-162 Ex Parte Notice

Dear Mr. Caton:

I am Regional Counsel for Bell Atlantic NYNEX Mobile (BANM), and I am writing to request prompt disposition of the pending Docket No. 96-115 in which the Commission proposes to propound rules concerning the use of Customer Proprietary Network Information (CPNI). BANM is a joint venture of Bell Atlantic and NYNEX and provides cellular service in markets throughout the East Coast. BANM competes with AT&T Wireless in the New York/Northern New Jersey cellular market. BANM is at a competitive disadvantage in the New York/Northern New Jersey marketplace because of the gross inequity that exists in the application of the current CPNI rules.

Section 702 of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, (new Section 222 to the Communications Act of 1934) "PRIVACY OF CUSTOMER INFORMATION", specifically provides that "except as required by law or with the approval of the customer, a telecommunications carrier that receives or obtains customer proprietary network information by virtue of its provision of a telecommunications service shall only use, disclose, or permit access to individually identifiable customer proprietary network information, in its provision of (A) the telecommunications service from which such information is derived ...". In its Comments filed in the above-captioned Docket, AT&T Corporation advocated a broad reading of the term "telecommunications service".¹

Without waiting for the Commission to concur with its views, AT&T is currently conducting a direct mail and telemarketing campaign in the New York/Northern New Jersey cellular market area using its long distance customer list to market and promote AT&T's cellular service. The enclosed undated letter is addressed to Ms. Diane Whitehead, who happens to be the Executive Director of Marketing for Bell Atlantic NYNEX Mobile's New York market. As you can see, this letter is advertising AT&T cellular service. Subsequent to her receipt of his letter, Ms. Whitehead received an outbound telemarketing call from AT&T. According to the telemarketing representative, she was calling AT&T's long distance customers in the New York market with a "special wireless offer". The telemarketing representative offered Ms. Whitehead a free cellular phone, 30 minutes of local cellular airtime each month for one year, and no activation fee. She also described the AT&T Wireless 3810 cellular phone and described its length, weight, and warranty specifics.

Ms. Whitehead asked the representative how she came to be on the list to receive the mailing and phone call, and the representative said it was because she was a "valued customer". Ms. Whitehead then asked her a "valued customer of what?" The telemarketing representative told her that she was "a valued long distance customer."² AT&T has access to Ms. Whitehead's name, address, and phone number because of AT&T's provision of Ms. Whitehead's landline long distance service. However, AT&T is using that information to attempt to provide Ms. Whitehead with cellular service.³

BANM is under a competitive disadvantage until the FCC acts. As written, the Cellular Separation Rules currently prohibit Bell Atlantic or NYNEX from providing BANM with their landline CPNI unless that same information is made publicly available.⁴ Therefore, BANM is competitively disadvantaged by the current application of the CPNI rules.

I am aware that in CC Docket 96-115 the FCC is currently reviewing the CPNI Rules. It is critical that the FCC give carriers clear guidance on the use of such information. I am also aware that in WT Docket 96-162 the FCC is reviewing the cellular separation rules. BANM believes that the cellular separation rules have been effectively repealed by the Telecom Act. However, BANM has cautiously refrained from acting on that belief until the FCC issues a decision.

Therefore, until such time as the FCC adopts a new rule that permits carriers unrestricted use of their CPNI, the Commission should order AT&T to cease this promotion and cease all further use of its landline long distance customer list for the marketing of cellular service. Alternatively, the Commission should immediately permit BANM to use landline CPNI to market its cellular service. Whatever the result, it must afford BANM the same opportunities as those afforded to its marketplace competitors.

² A copy of the mailing is attached for your information. Also attached is a copy sent to Jay Liotta, a New Jersey resident who is the husband of a BANM paralegal. Both Ms. Whitehead and Mr. Liotta have AT&T landline long distance on their home telephones, but are BANM cellular customers. This indicates that AT&T is distributing the mailing to their landline long distance customers who reside anywhere in BANM's New York or New Jersey cellular service area.

⁴ 47 CFR 22.903 (f). AT&T is not required to make its customer list publicly available.

Sincerely,
